

The „Rott Wetlands“ (Rottauen)

The recreational zone by the river, the „Rott Wetlands“ (Rottauen) is ideally placed for walks in the area around the town. Information about plant and animal life on the river is displayed on the nature walk. „Loreley of the Rott“ (artist: Wolfgang Auer), a 1.70 m high female sculpture is mounted between the small waterfall by the creek Dr. Bayer-Bach and the Theatron, an open-air stage. One can enjoy the prospect of the quietly flowing river from the „Ruhesteg“ (the „quiet pier“) made of wood which juts out a little over the Rott and then while away some time on the inviting benches and the „Lange Bank“ (Long Bench) by the weir.

The Rott Wetlands are a relaxation zone in Pfarrkirchen, developed in the course of flood protection measures. At the information pavilion, information can be found about footpaths and cycling routes.
